A SAVER

R. C. Shrader, aged 78 years, of the Hills of Huntersville, was in Marlinton last Thursday on his way to Hillsboro to spend a few days at the home of his son, I. B. Shrader. Mr. Shrader is one of the big property owners of Pocahontas county, and he told this editor some interesting things about his early struggles to establish himself in business.

Mr. Shrader's father was poor, and he had nothing to spare to set his son up in business, but he gave him his freedom at the age of nineteen years. At that age Mr. Shrader could read in McGuffey's first reader. He felt the need of more education and he went to school as much as his limited means would allow. His board cost him six dollars a month and the tuition was about two dollars more. It was before the days of free schools.

One of the schools he attended in wartime was taught by a man named Tucker, from Georgia, at the old Beaver Creek school house. Professor Tucker had come into this country to keep out of the war and he supported himself by teaching school. The Yankees took prisoner and he was sent to Camp Chase. It is Mr. Shrader's recollection that the Professor was one of the many who died in this military prison.

Mr. Tucker was a highly educated man, and he surprised the patrons and pupils by teaching the beginners to read before they had learned their letters or to spell. This is now the approved method in our modern schools, but it was a considerable of an innovation sixty or more years ago. Mr. Shrader says that the children learned fast and well much to the surprise of them all. He believes it to be the proper system.

Later he went part of two terms to a school taught in the basement of the old church at Hillsboro by Prof. Michael Moore.

Unable to find to the northwest part of the State. He turned his hand to anything he could find in the way of honest employment. Oil wells were being drilled and he worked in the oil fields. The prevailing wage on the farm was $14 a month. At Buchanan he was offered an opportunity to learn the tanners trade at $14 per month if he would bind himself in a contract. This he did. After a few years the tannery management was reorganized and he was promoted to the position of foreman at the big wage of $28 a month. It was then considered to be making big money and he was saving.

Later the tannery on Big Run was absorbed by the Buchanan tannery and the yard dismantled and abandoned. A man named Ward had noticed young Shrader's diligence and his knowledge of leather and leather making, and offered to lend him money to buy the plant. It would require such a large sum, that Mr. Shrader did not feel disposed to shoulder so heavy a debt, so he came back to his home county of Pocahontas.

Mr. Shrader was then 25 years old, and he had accumulated a capital of around $1500. This was the year 1870. He married himself a wife. They settled in the Hills, and proceeded to establish a tan yard. His capital was so limited that he could not buy hides, so he tanned on the shares. He knew leather, and he could tell what kind of leather a hide would make.

The next step in the business was to put in a shoe and saddle shop. He would manufacture the leather on tanned into all the shoes, boots, harness, bridles and saddles he could sell, and the balance of the leather he would ship to Baltimore or New York. At one time he had a force of five or six shoemakers and saddlers employed. He remembers one man in particular, an ex-convict who could make a pair of fine sewed boots in a day. These boots would sell for $7. The shoe factory was carried for about ten years. As Mr. Shrader would go about the country gathering up hides, he would take along boots, shoes and bridles and other things to sell.

He aimed to live and meet expenses by the sale of the manufactured articles, and to have the money from the leather he shipped on the clear. This he invariably invested in land. He accumulated a big acreage, and the increase in value of the land made him a fortune. It was just another case of making a little and a lot.

For about twenty years Mr. Shrader maintained his tan yard, and after that he devoted his attention to his land. He has six children, and he started them all out with farms. He has considerable land left.

Like all men who have led active lives he is not content to spend his old age in idleness. He has his own patches of farm produce, and he usually works with his own hand three acres of corn. Spare time he fights the brush in his pastures.

POINTS IN THE NEW GAME LAW

The State Game and Fish Commission is desirous that the hunter and fisherman of West Virginia be fully informed as to changes made in the game and fish laws by legislative enactment at the 1925 session. A copy of the Forest, Game and Fish Laws will be mailed to any one on application to the Game and Fish Commission, Charleston, West Virginia. Any person who does not have access to a copy of the law may find it of advantage to keep in mind the following points:

1. The open season for hunting squirrels begins on September 28, instead of September 1, as formerly. There is no open season on any game until September 28.

2. Raccoons and opossums cannot be taken until November 1; and there is no open season on beaver and otter.

3. The season on deer and wild turkeys is closed for two years.

4. The daily bag limit on rabbits is set at five per day.

5. No one can use a ferret except he is a land owner and uses ferrets to protect his property.

6. The season for bass fishing is July 1 to December 1, of each year.

7. The bag limit for bass is ten per day and for trout, twenty five per day.

8. Game fish cannot be gilled during the closed season on game fish.

9. It is unlawful to have in possession any hunting and fishing equipment, such as fish traps, seines over legal size, etc.

10. It is unlawful to cut down trees in which game animals den or take refuge, merely for the purpose of taking such animals.

11. It is unlawful to use a spot or jack light for hunting game animals, except that the same may be used for hunting animals that take refuge in trees.

12. Non-residents hunting license costs $15. Non-resident fishing license, $5.00.

New provisions of the forest fire law will be taken up with the forest land owners.

The hunter and fisherman are asked to WATCH THEIR STEP.

Yours to serve,
Game and Fish Commission of W. Va.

The Bank of Hillsboro, a corporation who sues in behalf of itself and all other creditors of J. Paul Beard, insane, and all other creditors of J. Paul Beard and Grace K. Beard.

W. H. Barlow, a committee for J. Paul Beard, et al.

Notice is hereby given that pursuant to a decree of the circuit court of Pocahontas county, West Virginia, pronounced on the 15th day of June, 1925, in the above entitled cause, I will, on the 19th day of August, 1925

at my office in the Town of Marlinton, West Virginia, proceed to take, state and report the following matters of account referred to me in said decree:

First. What personal estate the said J. Paul Beard owned at the time he was adjudged insane, the character and value thereof.

Second. What real estate owned by the defendant, W. H. Barlow, as committee of said J. Paul Beard, and how much, if any, of said personal estate is now in the hands of the said W. H. Barlow, as committee, available for the payment of any debts owing from the estate of the said J. Paul Beard.

Third. A settlement of the accounts of the said W. H. Barlow, as committee of said J. Paul Beard.

Fourth. All debts said J. Paul Beard owed at the time he was adjudged insane, to whom payable, their nature and respective amounts and priorities.

Fifth. What real estate was owned by the said J. Paul Beard at the time he was adjudged insane, its quantity, description and location.

Sixth. All the real estate owned by the judgment debtor, Grace K. Beard, where situate, its description and the quantity thereof.

Seventh. The lien upon the said real estate of the said Grace K. Beard, by whom held, the respective amounts and their priorities.

Eighth. Whether said real estate would in five years rent for a sufficient sum to pay off and discharge said liens and the costs of this suit.

Ninth. Such other matters as parties in interest may require, the same being pertinent, or such other matters as said commissioner himself may deem pertinent whether so required or not.

At which time and place you may attend and do what is necessary to protect your interest.

F. T. WARD,
Commissioner.

To all persons holding liens by judgment or otherwise, on the real estate or any part thereof of J. Paul Beard, insane, and Grace K. Beard or of either of them:

In pursuance of a decree of the circuit court of Pocahontas county, made in the cause therein pending, to subject the real estate of the said J. Paul Beard, insane and Grace K. Beard to the satisfaction of the liens thereon you are hereby required to present all claims held by you and each of you against the said J. Paul Beard, insane and Grace K. Beard which are liens on their said real estate, or any part thereof, for adjudication to me, at my office in the county of Pocahontas, in Marlinton, on or before the 19th day of August, 1925.

Given under my hand this 6th day of July, 1925.

F. T. WARD
Commissioner

To the creditors of J. Paul Beard, insane:

In pursuance of a decree of the Circuit Court of the county of Pocahontas, State of West Virginia, made in the cause therein pending, to subject the real estate of the said J.

Off The Beaten Path

The real charm of touring lies in leaving the main-travelled highways and exploring the thousands of alluring side-paths. These dirt roads and trails lead to spots of rare beauty unvisited by the throng—where better camp-sites may be found—finer fishing and lovelier scenery.

of exploration and discovery. It is the one satisfactory means of travel for these narrow roads—light—yet so powerful that it will bring you through—easy to handle—sturdy and economical.

It will carry the whole family and the saving in cost often pays for the entire vacation.
